

“A powder room is one space in which you can really have fun. Step outside your comfort zone and use that wallpaper you’ve always admired or a paint color you’ve always loved.”

—RACHEL HALVORSON,
rachelhalvorson.com

“THE OWNER OF THIS HOME WAS SMITTEN WITH THE LARGE SHELLS USED IN A BALI RESORT WHERE SHE STAYED, AND ONE OF HER ONLY REQUESTS IN THIS PROJECT WAS TO INCORPORATE A SHELL SINK.”

—ERIKA BONNELL,
erikabonnell.com

“POWDER BATHS ARE THE PERFECT ROOM IN WHICH TO ADD PATTERNED WALLPAPER, AN ANTIQUE MIRROR AND BEAUTIFUL LIGHTING. TREAT IT LIKE THE JEWEL BOX OF THE HOME.”

—MARIANNE SIMON,
mariannesimondesign.com

Clockwise from top: For a powder room in Nashville, Tennessee, interior designer Rachel Halvorson combined a Martyn Lawrence Bullard for Schumacher wallcovering, a marble countertop from Triton Stone Group, a Kohler faucet and a CB2 mirror. Interior designer Marianne Simon completed this Medina, Washington, space with a Schumacher wallcovering, a mirror from Susan Wheeler Home and Thomas O'Brien for Visual Comfort & Co. sconces. This Washington, D.C., design by Erika Bonnell includes a sink from Conch King and a Made Goods mirror backed by Cole & Son wallpaper.

HALVORSON PHOTO: CAROLINE ALLISON; SIMON PHOTO: JOHN GRANEN; BONNELL PHOTO: STACY ZARIN GOLDBERG PHOTOGRAPHY.